

Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Hats of the mighty. Headgear of various styles worn by the peace delegates in orderly array in the anteroom of the Quai d'Orsay. President Wilson's silk "topper" is among them.

Copyright, International Film.

Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, America's "Ace of Aces," and some of the men who did him honor at the dinner given him on his return by his friends and admirers. Seated with him are, left to right, Hugh Chalmers, Charles E. Thompson, Clifford Ireland, the Captain, Secretary of War Baker, Dr. Henry Van Dyke, Richard Kennerly and John Wilson.

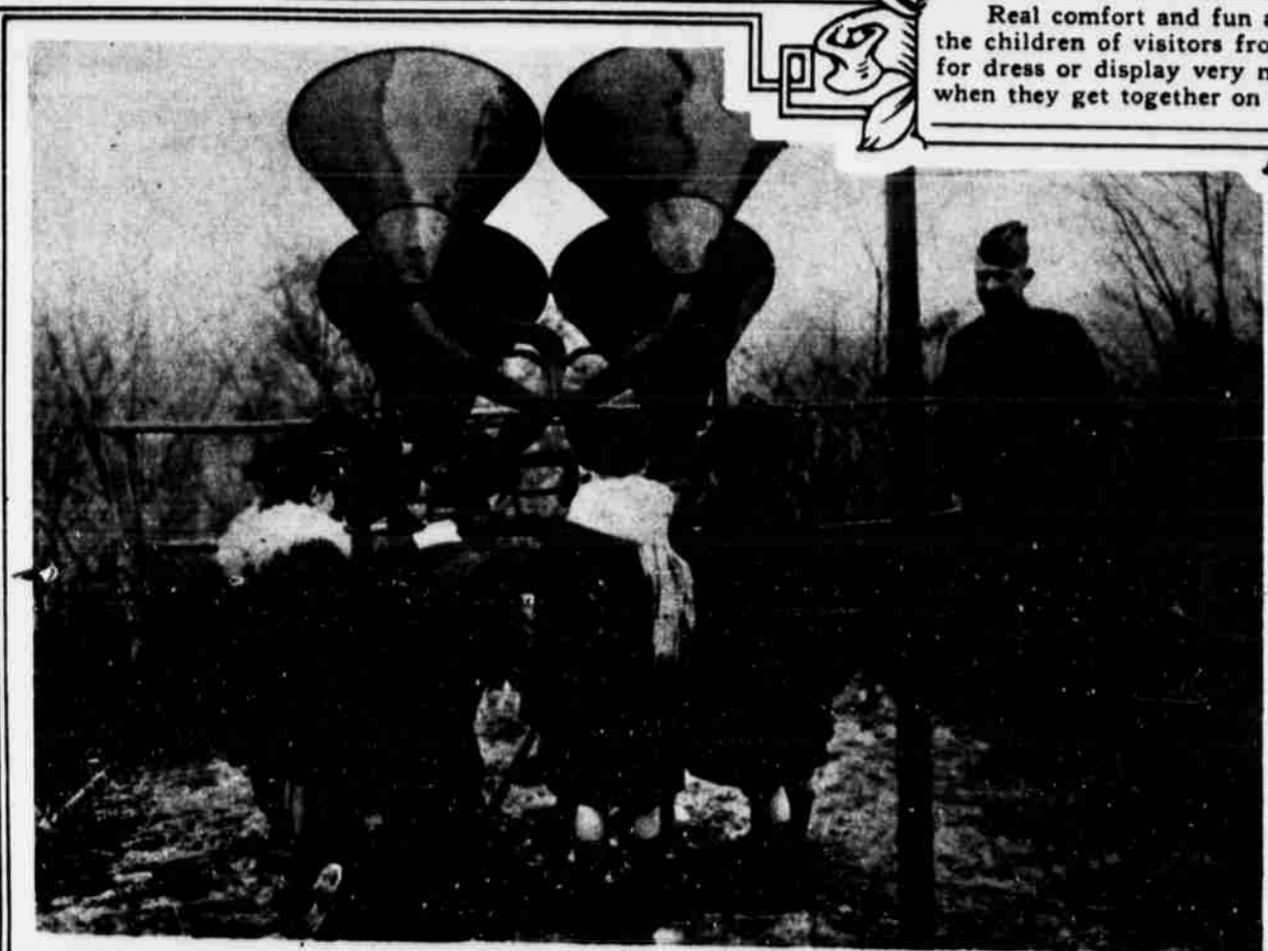

Above—Changing the guard on the Rhine. The men are from the 42d Division, A. E. F., and the scene is at Niedergreisig, Germany, in the zone of American occupation. The river is at the right and a canal at the left.
U. S. Official photo, from Paul Thompson.

Above—Billie Burke and her husband, Flo Ziegfeld, with their baby, Patricia, about to start out for a spin in their motor wheel chair, the latest thing at Palm Beach. Irving Berlin, the song writer, is ready to send them off.
Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

Real comfort and fun at Palm Beach. The pretty youngsters are the children of visitors from all over the country. They don't go in for dress or display very much, but they certainly have a good time when they get together on the sand.
Copyright, International Film.

French orphans inspecting one of the most unusual mechanical devices of the war. The huge resonators give warning of the approach of hostile planes long before they actually become visible.
Photo Press Illustrating Service.

Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Speaker Thaddeus Sweet leading the procession of State officials and newspaper men at the funeral, on January 29, of Joseph L. McEntee, for many years The Sun correspondent at Albany.